Cocos Island 2015 Space Still Available!

Have you always yearned to visit to Cocos Island? Has seeing walls of hammerheads, manta, marble and eagle rays been on your "must-do" list? The robust Cocos Island ecosystem is second to none, where tiger sharks, white-tips, silver tips, black tips, galapagos and whale sharks are frequently cited. Now is the time to go!

Let us help you orchestrate the trip of a lifetime. Sea Save Foundation has brought together all the superlatives. Argo is the most luxurious diving vessel visiting Cocos Island today. Be pampered while diving one of the most remote, exciting and adrenaline-filled destinations in the world.

Your hosts, Jay Ireland and Georgienne Bradley, have logged over 3,000 dives at Cocos, their conservation efforts have included working with the UNESCO team to help make Cocos Island a World Heritage Site. The Costa Rican government leveraged the power of their underwater images to raise national awareness through a postage stamp series and national lottery series. The duo have also penned hundred of articles about Cocos. They know Cocos Island natural history will entertain you with stories and island legends.

Life is short, now is the time to sign up for this opportunity. No Regrets! Be there or be square. For more information about how to join this expedition here

Support CITES Decision to Protect Sharks & Mantas - Sign Petition and Share!

Last March, Sea Save Foundation representatives attended CITES (Conference of the Parties for International Trade of Endangered Species). While there, we made history. Five marine species were placed on Appendix II. This meant that while these animals can still be caught and traded internationally, the activity will be monitored, and data can be collected, so we can make informed decisions in the future.

Sound science was the basis of this decision. Each proposal was only passed after heated debate that lasted for hours. In the end, the international community decided that the numbers of hammerhead, oceanic white tip and porbeagle sharks, and manta rays were dangerously low and voted that these species be placed on Appendix II.

Now, five countries are ignoring the voice of the international community. Japan, Yemen, Guyana, Denmark and Iceland are undermining the power of this conference. They have filed reservations stating that they will be doing business as usual and ignoring CITES.

Please help us send a message to these countries, that they cannot benefit from the rest of the international community while acting irresponsibly. By signing this petition, we can tell them that we support the CITES decisions and that there are ramifications for nations that ignore these international decisions.

ADEX The Asia Dive Expo April 11- 13

Sea Save Foundation will be making their first appearance at ADEX - Asia Dive Expo, this April, in Singapore! Thanks to a kind invitation from ADEX organizers Cassandra Ann Dragon and Michael Aw, the Sea Save Foundation "Give Em the Fin" Mosaic will be featured at the show. This event draws about 38,000 visitors each year! We hope to take a "bite" out of the mosaic.

We are very excited to bring our Give 'Em the Fin campaign to this event to raise awareness about these beautiful creatures and to educate participants on the terrible practices of shark finning. If you live near Singapore, and can help us prepare for this event, or if you can help us at our booth during the event, please send us an email at orca@seasave.org.

Our Growing Pod

One of the things Sea Save is most proud of is our growing international group of volunteers. From high-end IT work being performed by a volunteer in Nairobi, Kenya, our center of Shark Programs in Belgium, to our Program Direction hub in London, England to our, college and high school students scattered around the globe. Please stay tuned as we profile volunteers each month.

Join this vivacious, growing group of volunteers. "It's Your Ocean, Do Something About It!" There is something for everyone. Check out our volunteer positions to see how you can help!

Don't see what you're looking for? We still need you! Please call or email us at 310-458-1020 or orca@seasave.org.
