Join Us for the Trip of a Lifetime: Cocos Island Expedition 2015

After a couple of years away from the island, Georgienne Bradley and Jay Ireland are returning to where it all began at Cocos Island, Costa Rica. Georgienne and Jay were instrumental in developing the proposal which made the island a UNESCO World Heritage Site. This is not just a dive trip but full immersion into one of the world's last frontiers, both above and below the water.

Join Sea Save Foundation September 11- 21, 2015. See hammerheads, whale sharks, turtles, manta rays, dolphins, white tips and an entire menagerie of underwater flora and fauna as we explore this island paradise aboard the Argo, a luxury liveaboard. Expedition cost is US$5095 (+ park fee). (Email greatwhite@seasave.org).

Diving into BLUE

In November, Sea Save Foundation leaders attended BLUE Ocean Film Festival and Conservation Summit in Florida. Filmmakers, photographers, scientists, explorers, and entertainment executives gather at this event annually to discuss vital issues facing our oceans and to discuss solutions. Our award-nominated music video "Big Blue Town" became part of this dynamic conversation when it was screened alongside other works by emerging and celebrated filmmakers.

Because film has always been an integral part of our mission, we are proud to support BLUE as official patrons.

Continued Support from our Partner Advocates at DEMA

November also saw us head to Las Vegas for the dive and travel expo known as DEMA. Here we created and renewed crucial relationships with members of the travel and scuba diving industry who have a vested interest in ocean protection. It is with the continued support of our returning donor partners and those new to Sea Save that we can continue with our work. This year we had our most productive DEMA to date, thanks to a devoted and energetic team that logged over 168 miles on the convention floor in four days.
